JUVENTUD ECUATORIANA

Letter from the President

Dear community,

As President of the Ecuadorian Youth Organization (JUVE), a nonprofit based in New York City and established in 2006, I'm excited to share the impact we've made in supporting Ecuadorians in the U.S. through education. Founded by Ecuadorian students, our mission is to offer educational and growth opportunities to our community.

We extend a warm invitation to learn more about our organization, its projects, and its initiatives. We encourage you to join our cause and collaborate with us to continue supporting the Ecuadorian community. On behalf of all those who will benefit from your support, we express our most sincere gratitude and admiration for contributing to the construction of a solid community with a bright future.

I encourage you to connect with JUVE and become part of this educational drive. Promoting education within our community and encouraging more young people to access higher education is an invaluable contribution that Ecuadorian Youth makes to our society. Together, we will continue to support more Ecuadorians to achieve their professional goals.

Join this effort for education and contribute to forging a promising future for our community.

Sincerely,
Msc. Bladimir Quito
President of JUVE

HISTORY:

Organización Juventud Ecuatoriana (JUVE), a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, was established in 2006 by young Ecuadorians residing in New York City. JUVE provides impactful seminars, workshops, and forums covering education, leadership, financial management, human and civil rights, equipping individuals with the tools to thrive.

Committed to preserving Ecuadorian heritage and culture, JUVE undertakes various projects and initiatives to celebrate its richness. Recognizing the importance of higher education, JUVE created the Ecuadorian Scholars Fund to support Ecuadorians in pursuit of a college degree. JUVE's early initiatives, like the Immigration Awareness forum and GED classes, underscored its dedication to addressing the immediate needs of the community. Through steadfast commitment and community support, JUVE has become a well-respected organization in the NY Tri-State area, championing education, cultural awareness, and global connections for the Ecuadorian community.
